

Having Your KIDNEY Donor Find YOU!

What are Google Alerts?

Google Alerts is a free service that will send you articles written about a particular topic or industry.

All you need to do is put in key words and Google will email you links to articles or postings that include those key words. If you put in, “living kidney transplant,” “paired exchange” or “living kidney donation” you’ll receive articles that use those words. There’s no limit to the key words you could add. You’ll receive articles every day either about people in need or ones who’ve just had a kidney transplant.

Why Should I Be Interested in Google Alerts?

It will educate you and keep you current on what is happening in the kidney transplant community. You could use one of the articles or the information you learned in your Tuesdays with... updates. Read about Tuesdays with... updates in the Supporting Resources.

How Do I Sign Up for Google Alerts?

You don’t need a Gmail account to get Google Alerts. To set up a Google Alert go to: <https://www.google.com/alerts>
